

Republican Budget Would Be Devastating for Vermont Women

Senate Democrats are working to provide a fair shot for everyone to succeed by creating good paying jobs and opportunity for working women. Instead of protecting programs critical to women across the country, Republicans have again introduced a budget that would take an enormous toll on women by cutting the services they rely on for their health and the health of their children.¹

1,984 fewer Vermont women could be screened for cancer. The Republican budget would cut funding for the National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program, which helps low-income, uninsured, or underinsured women gain access to diagnostic services like clinical breast examinations, mammograms, pap tests, and pelvic examinations. The deep cuts in the Republican budget could result in Vermont receiving $499,987 less funding. 7,230 fewer children could receive life-saving vaccinations. Grants for childhood immunizations help to purchase and distribute vaccines for poor and uninsured children. The Republican budget could cut $494,081 in funding for life-saving vaccinations in Vermont. Reproductive health programs in Vermont could be cut by $262,588. The Republican budget could cut $262,588 in services funding for the Title X family planning program in Vermont, which provided access to contraceptives supplies, reproductive health information and counseling, breast and pelvic examinations, breast and cervical cancer screening, STD and HIV prevention education, and pregnancy counseling to 7,448 women in 2012 alone. Over 87,000 women in Vermont will lose access to health benefits. The Republican budget repeals the Affordable Care Act, eliminating health insurance coverage and new benefits for millions of Americans and jeopardizing their access to stable, secure, affordable care. 87,000 women and 46,000 children in Vermont would have a lifetime limit on their coverage under the Republican budget. 58,572 fewer women and children could have access to maternal and child health services in Vermont. The Maternal and Child Health Block grant helps states provide critical maternal and child health services, including prenatal care, well-child services, and other services through clinics, home visits, and school-based health programs. The Republican budget could cut $294,968 million in funding from Vermont, resulting in 58,572 fewer women and children served. 71 fewer victims of domestic violence could be served through the STOP Violence Against Women Program. Funding for the STOP Violence Against Women Program helps states provide support services for victims of domestic violence. The Republican budget could cut $117,647 in funding from Vermont, resulting in 71 fewer women and children served. Additionally, the Republican budget could cut $35,312 in funding to Vermont, for the Sexual Assault Services program, which is dedicated to assisting victims of sexual assault through rape crisis centers and other programs. At the same time, because the Republican budget repeals the Affordable Care Act, insurance companies will again be able to say that being a victim of domestic violence or sexual assault is a “pre-existing condition” that will force women to pay more for their health insurance. Millions more women will have to pay more for contraceptive coverage. The Republican Budget repeals the Affordable Care Act, which requires that insurance plans provide coverage without cost sharing for a variety of preventive health services, including cervical cancer and breast cancer screenings as well as contraceptive drugs. In 2013, more than 24 million more contraceptive prescriptions were filled without a co-pay than the previous year, resulting in savings to women throughout the country of more than $483 million.
